Training Kits to Teach Children Ages 3-7

“The Good Apple Guide to Manners for Kids” is a training kit designed for child-care providers, educators and parents. It was written and designed by the experts at www.civilityexperts.com and consists of thirty 10-minute manners lessons for children ages 3-7.

The lessons can be taught in two weeks or spread out over an entire month. Each lesson is designed for 10 minutes but may be expanded up to 1 hour using the suggested activities and worksheets per the instructor’s discretion, making the program a comprehensive 30-hour curriculum. The kit includes detailed lesson plans for instructions plus activities, worksheets and practice exercises for participants.

Lessons include everything from basic manners (making introductions, showing kindness to others, telephone etiquette, respecting yourself, dining skills, manners at school, thank you notes) to sleep over and party etiquette, just to name a few. The no-nonsense materials package includes an easy-to-follow 111-page Instructors manual and a 34-page master file for reproducing worksheets and participant materials.

Children are most receptive to learning manners between the ages of 3-7. Teaching children the rules for social conduct gives them social skills that will benefit them throughout their lives. Manners are not just about which fork to use, they are about fostering respectfulness and teaching responsibility.
